Novelty (N)	Claims 1-40	YES
	Claims -	NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims 1-40	YES
	Claims -	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims 1-40	YES

The following documents identified in the International Search Report have been considered for the purposes of this report:

D1 - US 5369924
D2 - US 3236932

NOVELTY (N)

The present invention is directed to an elongate batten and a method of building construction using a batten for positioning intermediate an inner wall framing member and an outer wall cladding sheet and having at least one longitudinally extending channel to facilitate migration and drainage of moisture between the batten and the framing member along the length of the batten.

None of the prior art discloses the features of the present invention.

The closest art, D1, refers to a curtain-wall system having frames (20) and sub-frames (36) wherein channels (30) are formed within the frames (20) to discharge fluids which had penetrated the seals on the external surface of the glass panes. The channels (30) however are formed on the frame member and not on the sub-frames (36).

D2 refers to the use of furring strips (24) having a longitudinal channel for attachment to a stud or sheathing. There is no explicit teaching in D2 that this channel can facilitate the migration and drainage of moisture between the strip (24) and the sheathing or stud member.

D3 refers to the use of an engaging member (10) provided with a longitudinal channel. This longitudinal channels however is directed away from the framework and thus is not designed to facilitate the migration and evaporation of moisture between the engaging member/stud and the framework as defined in the claims.

Therefore, the subject matter of claims 1-40 is new and meets the requirements of Article 33(2) of the PCT with regard to novelty.

Supplemental Box

In case the space in any of the preceding boxes is not sufficient.

Continuation of: Box V

INVENTIVE STEP (IS)

Claims 1-40 also meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(3) with regard to the requirement of Inventive Step because the prior art does not obviously suggest to a person skilled in the art the use of a batten having at least one longitudinally extending channel to facilitate migration and drainage of moisture between the batten and the framing member along the length of the batten.

INDUSTRIAL APPLICABILITY (IA)

The claims are related to products capable of commercial application.
